The Pantry of Japan,, Learn from northern land

Endless farm is continuous to the end of horizon. It is the typical image of Hokkaido. The vastness of land and farms in Hokkaido, it becomes the land of food in Japan. The food self-supporting ratio based on calorie is over 196%. Taking advantage of plenty of lands, there are various plants. Such as Chinese yams and lily roots are good examples as Brands of Vegetables from overseas. In Hokkaido, there are more professional farmers than other prefectures in Japan. Each farmer has their own huge land, so all works are toward to mechanization.

Seaweed and herring with long history and be taking seriously

It's been a long history of seaweed and herring fishing in Hokkaido. Especially after Edo period, they became high-developed because of Kitamae boat trading activities. Around Meiji 40, it became difficult catching herrings, so they changed main target to pilchard and squid from Taisyoperiod to early Syowaperiod. After this, offshore or pelagic fishing became more and more popular, but it declined after Syowa50. As global warming, it is hardly to catch fish. Nowadays, it's more popular to raise scallops, salmons, trouts and seaweeds

Curling experience

Curling is a winter sport in Hokkaido in winter and is famous as an Olympic sport. At first, just walking on the ice is a struggle, but after an hour you'll be able to enjoy the mini-games.

Fruit-picking

From July to the end of October, you can enjoy picking different kinds of fruits in the Orchard safely, with high quality at reasonable price. Fruit trees here are cultivated with safe green farming practices. You can feel free to pick up fruits from the tree and directly eat them in the farm. In addition, since the orchard is in the very Northern part of Japan, fruits here are much sweeter and juicier due to the temperature difference.

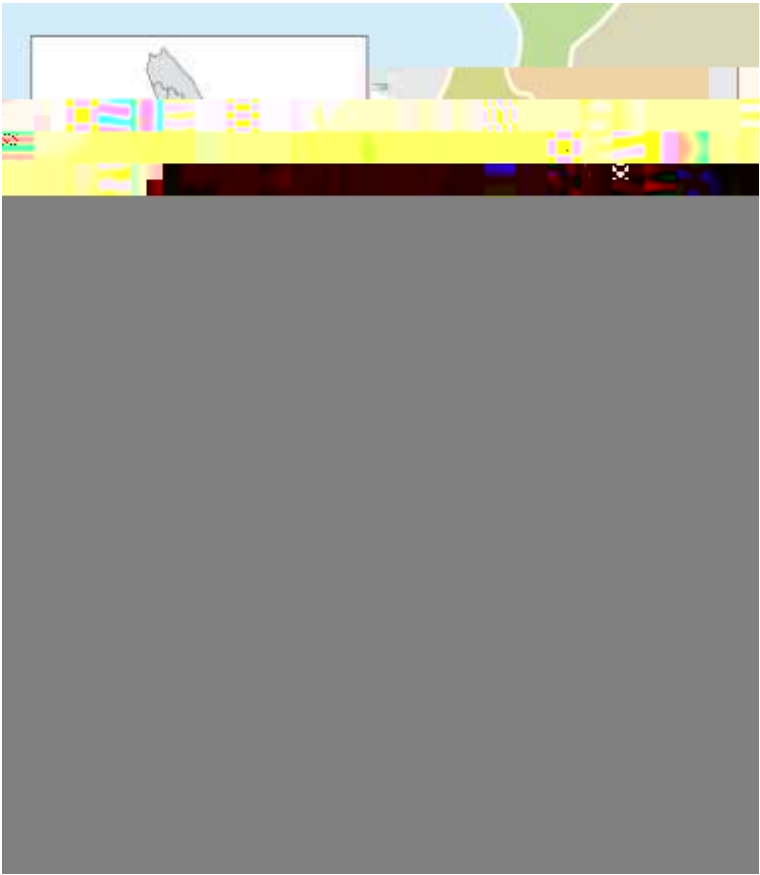

Japanese tea ceremony

You can experience the authentic Japanese tea ceremony here.
